Woodley Park News

The Fall series of Tuesday Talks at the Cleveland Park Library features some fascinating residents of Woodley and Cleveland Park:

September 24: Ann Crittenden will discuss her book Raising Children: The Most Undervalued Leadership Credential. Crittenden covered economic topics for The New York Times, initiated numerous investigative reports and was nominated for the Pulitzer Prize. She has also been a writer or contributor to numerous major publications, a visiting lecturer at MIT and Yale, an economics commentator for CBS News and executive director of the Fund for Investigative Journalism.

October 15: Jenny Bilfield, President and CEO, Washington Performing Arts.

November 19: Jeffrey Rosen, President and CEO, The National Constitution Center.

The talks are sponsored by the Cleveland Park Business Association and the Woodley & Cleveland Park Village, in collaboration with the DC Public Library. 7 pm at the Cleveland Park Library. More details can be found here.

The Friends of the Cleveland Park Library will hold a book sale in the Library, lower level, on Saturday September 7, 10 to 11 am for Friends members; 11 am to 4 pm for everyone. There also will be a bag sale on Sunday September 8 from 1 to 3 pm.

The Klinge Valley Trail will close for three months starting on September 3 for storm sewer upgrades.

A Reminder. The Woodley Park residents art show will open at the Stanford gallery on October 17. Let me know if you're interested in participating if you haven't done so already.
