Woodley Park News

You might have noticed animal sculptures being installed on lampposts in Woodley Park. They are part of the Endangered Animals Art Project, sponsored by the Capitol Hill Arts Workshop and partially funded by WPCA, other community groups and DC Commission for the Arts and Humanities. There will be a ribbon cutting for this exhibit on Saturday April 27, 11 am at 3000 Connecticut Ave, followed by music at each of the sculptures.

WPCA's next Meet-Your-Neighbors Happy Hour will be Wednesday May 8, 6 to 8 pm, at Naanwise, 2635 Connecticut Ave. RSVP here.

Goings on at All Souls Episcopal Church (2300 Cathedral Ave) --

On Sunday April 28 at 4 pm. An organ recital featuring music director, Bobby Stubbs. This event will celebrate the installation of the parish organ by Walker Technical Company.

On Sunday May 5 at 3 pm. There will be a showing of the film the Philadelphia Eleven, which concerns the 11 women who were the first to be ordained in the Episcopal Church. After the film, there will be a Q&A session with the Reverend Carter Heyward, who was one of the Philadelphia Eleven.

Tuesday Talk. The next talk features The Atlantic journalist Mark Leibovich discussing "What Could Possibly Go Wrong? The 2024 Elections." He is the author of five books, including two No. 1 NY Times best sellers, This Town and Thank You for Your Servitude. Tuesday May 14, 7 pm at the CP Library. Seating is limited, so register early.
